

CZAR OF RUSSIA WORKS FOR PEACE

Nicholas Issues Invitations For Second Conference Of The Hague.

ROOSEVELT RELINQUISHES HIS PART

Steps Aside When The Emperor Of Defeated Nation And Originator Of Tribunal Desires To Take Lead.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
St. Petersburg, Sept. 19.—Emperor Nicholas again appears before the world as a promoter of universal peace. No sooner is the Russo-Japanese war over—and even before the peace treaty has been ratified—than his majesty issues invitations to a second peace conference at The Hague.

That the emperor has done so was learned from a source which leaves no shadow of doubt as to its authenticity.

To Confer at The Hague.

It is officially announced that "the Russian government proposes to address the foreign powers with a view to the holding of a second peace conference at The Hague," but it is known that negotiations preceding this announcement that the government "proposed to address the powers" were entered into especially with the United States and were conducted with the greatest secrecy, there being not the slightest inkling that Russia contemplated anything of the kind.

The announcement created the greatest surprise here, and that Russia should plan a second conference despite the steps already taken by President Roosevelt, was also heard with amazement. It is clear that the step could not be taken by Russia without first reaching a complete understanding with President Roosevelt.

The fact that President Roosevelt is reported as being entirely in sympathy with the proposal and that he is said to believe that to the initiator of the first Hague conference should belong the honor of convoking the second, and readily and gladly acceded to the Russian proposal, is clear proof that the conference has already been called and that President Roosevelt relinquished his part in it to the emperor.

There is strong reason to believe that the news, even of the intention of the Russian government, would not be given out unless invitations had already been sent to the powers and possibly, that their answers had been received.

Communication to Japan.
In this connection an interesting question arises as to how the invitation was communicated to Japan in view of the lack of diplomatic relations, but the invitation may be delayed until such relations have been resumed or it may have been forwarded through the United States.

It was impossible to learn the proposed date of the second conference or to gain even an approximate idea regarding it, but it probably will not be greatly delayed. Russia, as the power convoking the conference, will probably submit an official program of the other powers submitting suggestions.

One View of the Philippines' Impresses Former Anti-Imperialists Favorably

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Washington, Sept. 19.—The latest mail reports from Manila are bringing remarkable copies of the speech of Bourke Cochrane at the banquet of the Taft party by Archbishop Harby, in which his strong anti-imperialism came out enthusiastically in support of the administration policy. He declared the President could count upon absolute confidence upon the support of the men who formerly opposed the acquisition of the islands. He said he and his colleagues were certain the present administration was not taking steps except for the benefit of the people in the Philippines.

STATE WINS OUT IN FIRST LAW POINTS

Judge Trevens Makes Ruling in Suits Against the Railways by State.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 19.—The state of Wisconsin won an important round in the "back tax" litigation brought by the state to compel the railroads to pay large sums claimed on account of excessive reports of gross earnings filed by the companies with the state railroad commissioners. The roads admitted in previous litigation that their reports omitted items of earnings that ought to have been included, but in the suits brought by the state they claimed that back taxes were the same as debts and that according to the statute of limitations the state could recover for only six years back, while the state contended that recovery could be made for the past 20 years. On this point Circuit Judge E. Ray Stevens ruled that there is a great difference between taxes and debts and that the state's contention was correct. Railroad Commissioner Thomas discovered unreported items of earnings for the last six years, the taxes on which would amount to $155,000. To these figures the railroads practically agreed, but it is said that the latest decision will bring the amount to be recovered near to $1,000,000.

FRENCHMAN HAS A PLAN FOR CANAL

Would Make Decided Innovations in the Present System That Has Been Planned.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Washington, Sept. 19.—The board of consulting engineers today heard the explanations of the plan of Beauvailla and Linden W. Bates, Beima Varilla was engaged on the Panama canal under the French regime. Bates is a New Yorker. The Frenchman said under his proposed method a canal could be built and in operation in five years. He proposes to construct locks from the foundation below sea level in five years or more. His high level as finished would first be a hundred and thirty feet above the sea level. He says the dredging could be continued without interruption to commerce.

While digging a trench for a sewer in the heart of La Crosse, workmen unearthed the skeleton of what appears to have been a giant, eight feet tall. It is thought that the bones are those of an Indian.

GREAT HONORS FOR WITTE ON RETURN

Will Be Received in Grand Style When He Reaches St. Petersburg—Big Preparations.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
St. Petersburg, Sept. 19.—A great reception will be tendered Mr. Witte when he arrives here, to show the appreciation in which his successful efforts to bring about peace are held by the people of this city. The reception will be under the auspices of a number of liberal manufacturers who will present an address to the peace envoy. The avenue leading to the Troitzky Bridge and M. Witte's house will be named after the envoy as a mark of honor and his name will likewise be conferred on many schools. One of the features of the reception will be the call to be made upon the returning envoy by a deputation of women who will greet him in the name of thousands of mothers and wives, who will press to him their thanks for ending the war so that their husbands may return to them and their families.

Is in Paris Now.
Paris, Sept. 19.—M. Witte, Gen. Yermakoff, Col. Vladimir Samoyloff, M. Plancon and other members of the Russian peace commission arrived here today from Cherbourg, en route to St. Petersburg. Mme. Witte joined her husband at his hotel and will travel with him to Russia.

AGED "HAS BEENS" WILL BOX TONIGHT

Sullivan-Mitchell Bout Considered a Theatrical Entertainment of a Farical Nature.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 19.—Followers of fistie events are rather inclined to regard the fight here tonight between John L. Sullivan and Chas. W. Mitchell, as a theatrical event or farce. The men are matched to box fifteen rounds at Recreation Park, for fifty per cent of the gross receipts, winner to receive 65 per cent, and loser 25 per cent. The fight will be under Marquis of Queensberry rules. Both men have been out of condition for years. Mitchell touches the scales well above two hundred, while old John L. tips the beam at nearly a hundred pounds more.

REMOVES MEN WHO AIDED IN SMUGGLING

Department of Commerce and Labor Have Removed Two Inspectors Today.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Washington, Sept. 19.—The Department of Commerce and Labor has removed Edward Balz and Charles W. Stevenson, Chinese inspectors in the immigration service, for alleged assisting in smuggling four Chinamen across at Buffalo and also swearing falsely at the trial of these Chinamen. It is stated this is the first time since the exclusion act was passed that an inspector has been found guilty.

SHOW-ME DEMOCRATS ARE AFTER HARMONY

Missouri Donkey Disciples Seek to Regain Lost Majority in State Before Election.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
St. Louis, Sept. 19.—The democrats of the state will get together here tonight at a "harmony meeting," led by ex-Congressman Collin M. Selph. The differences which now divide the party in the state are expected to be adjusted so that the fall campaign can be pushed vigorously. The republicans, encouraged by their gains at the last presidential election, are likewise planning a vigorous campaign.

BIG INTERNATIONAL PEACE CONFERENCE

Question of Reducing Armies and Navies To Be Very Seriously Discussed.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Lucerne, Switzerland, Sept. 19.—The fourteenth international Peace Congress assembled here today, and it promises to prove in many respects the most important of the peace congresses thus far. The questions of the reduction of the armies and navies of the world, and of the establishment of a stable international congress for the regular consideration of all international matters, are to the themes of most serious discussion.

THEATRICAL CRITIC IS FIGHTING TRUST

Suing Klaw and Erlanger Combine Because He Was Refused Admission to Their Houses.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Sept. 19.—One of the most interesting fights that has ever been waged in New York was renewed here today when the proprietors of the New York theatres in the Klaw-Erlanger combination were brought to trial in the suit instituted by James S. Metcalfe, life's theatrical critic. Former District Attorney James W. Osborne has been retained as special district attorney to prosecute the conspiracy proceedings against the so-called trust. The case has attracted world-wide attention because Mr. Metcalfe alleges that he was shut out of the theatres controlled by the trust because his criticisms were not complimentary. Mr. Metcalfe, however, claims that the criticisms were perfectly just, and for that reason the trust is liable to prosecution for refusing to admit him to the theatres under its control.

Ernest Kell, who was made the defendant at Racine in a damage suit for $1,000, after being fined $25 and costs for assaulting Sam. Hanson, chauffeur for Dr. C. L. Shoop, with a pickpocket, has settled the case out of court by paying the injured chauffeur $100.

Rudolph Wenckworth, one of the proprietors of the Jefferson, Wis., Brewing company, was on Monday kicked by a horse and so seriously injured that he may not recover.

MITCHELL ISSUES CALL TO MINERS

Representatives Of Anthracite Districts To Assemble At Shamokin.

MAY FORMULATE PLANS OF STRIKE

A Similar Action Was Taken Just Before The Great Labor Troubles Occurred in the Coal Regions In 1902.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Shamokin, Pa., Sept. 19.—President John Mitchell of the United Mineworkers of America has announced that the convention of mineworkers of the three anthracite districts at which demands will be formulated to be presented to the anthracite coal companies next spring will be held here on Dec. 14. The mineworkers of the three districts will shortly elect delegates to represent them at the meeting.

The decision to hold a convention to formulate demands is similar to the action taken before the great strike of 1902, when a convention was held to draw up demands. The award of the anthracite coal strike commission will expire March 31 next year.

Builds Up Union.
President Mitchell has been in the anthracite region for the last two months holding meetings every day for the purpose of strengthening the union. After the 1902 strike there was a considerable falling off in membership. As a result of the campaign the miners' leader is waging many of those who dropped out of the organization are returning.

Among the demands that the convention will probably formulate are an eight-hour workday for all classes of mineworkers, recognition of the union and a yearly agreement with the coal companies similar to the one existing in some of the bituminous coal fields of the middle west.

Strike Is Averted.
Pittsburg, Kan., Sept. 19.—The district board of the United Mineworkers has voted to accept the proposition of the Coal Operators association on the coal pushing wage question and all danger of a strike in this district over that dispute was averted. The operators will pay the miners for the time actually consumed in pushing cars to add from the room to the switch on the main entry.

Illinois Strike Still On.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 19.—Striking chain-machine miners of the Chicago and Alton subdistrict, who have refused to stand by an agreement entered into between the state executive board of the United Mineworkers of Illinois and operators of the subdistrict, voted 521 to 165 against returning to work, despite the advice of President Mitchell and Vice President Lewis of the national organization. An appeal will be made to President Mitchell to intercede.

CRUDE OIL JUMPS UP A FEW CENTS

Standard Oil People Increase Their Prices Gradually Day by Day.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Pittsburg, Sept. 19.—The Standard Oil company today raised the price of crude oil. Today's advance is 2c in the west to 3c. Since the 12th it has jumped three times. The total advance in the east is 9c and in the west 6c.

HAS SITUATION BEEN SOMEWHAT STRAINED

Moroccan Question Is Coming Up Soon for Definite Settlement.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Paris, Sept. 19.—Because the conferences between the special envoys of Germany and France have been suspended the feeling is prevalent that the Moroccan situation has assumed a critical state. It is positively stated by the government that Moroccan integrity will be maintained.

ILLINOIS COURT KNOCKS OUT A RATE AGREEMENT

Appellate Judicial Body Declares Insurance Contract Illegal Because It Kills Competition.

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 19.—The appellate court has decided in favor of the state in the lengthy litigation begun two years ago by former Attorney General Hamlin against 110 insurance companies doing business in Illinois on a charge of entering into a combination for the fixing of uniform rates and thus wiping away competition. The decision is far-reaching, as Mr. Hamlin's contention that such combinations, whether in restraint of competition in the sale of commodities or in the insurance or any other line of business can be dissolved under the common law in the absence of specific statutes, was sustained.

Cannot Adjust Rates.
The suit against the insurance companies was begun before Judge Schaefer at Belleville and was a test case applying to the arbitrary fixing of insurance rates by one adjuster in the district composed of St. Clair, Monroe and Clinton counties, all the state being divided into similar districts by the companies. A demurrer was made to the original bill and in an amended form it was taken before Judge Burroughs of Edwardsville, who ruled against the common-law contention of the attorney general, who about nine months ago took the case to the appellate court.

Decision Is Far-reaching.
Former Attorney General Hamlin received a telegram announcing the purpose of the court's finding in his favor as he was about to take a train for Kansas City and was much elated. "Under that decision," he said, "there is not a combination in restraint of competition or constituting a monopoly, no matter of what character, even to professional services, that cannot be reached and dissolved under the common-law principle contrary to carrying out of such purposes."

WM. APPLEBY IS CITY MARSHAL

FILED HIS BONDS AND TAKES CHARGE SOON.

COUNCIL'S SUDDEN ACTION

Displacing Present Incumbent, John J. Comstock. Last Evening, Was a Surprise to All Janesville.

All the routine business of the city council's session had been completed and Alderman Baumann had already moved for adjournment last evening when something entirely unlooked for and unexpected, even by those who imagined themselves in close touch with the movements of the city fathers, occurred. A representative of one of the wards arose from his seat in the semi-circle and made a brief statement. He said: "There seems to be considerable dissatisfaction with the police force again and there is a feeling that we haven't got the proper head." Without further preface he offered a motion that the council proceed at once to ballot for a new city marshal. All this was received quite complacently by his colleagues, with possibly one or two exceptions. Only on the faces of these and the few spectators was mirrored any genuine surprise. One alderman asked whether such a vote could be taken without further preliminary and Mayor Hutchinson turned to the charter and read the passages which recite that the council may appoint, remove, or displace such an officer at its pleasure. He closed the book and appointed Aldermen Hager and Fish as tellers. Less than sixty seconds thereafter the ballots were in and counted. The vote stood: William H. Appleby, 6; John J. Comstock, 1; and M. J. McGee, 1. It was moved that the informal ballot be declared formal. Motion prevailed and His Honor announced: "By your ballots you have elected William H. Appleby city marshal and I do so declare him." Then the council adjourned and took a hurried departure from the city hall. The whole episode had consumed considerably less than five minutes. A single alderman remained behind and made his way to the police office in the basement, presumably to tell Mr. Comstock of what had occurred. The latter greeted him cordially and asked him what had been done at the session. The alderman suddenly became appalled at the prospect of carrying out the mission he had voluntarily undertaken. "You'll know in the morning," he said, and abruptly took his leave. An hour later someone called up the station by telephone and asked Mr. Comstock whether or not he cared to make any statement. It was then that he received the first intimation of what had occurred. "I shall not shed any tears over it," was all that he would say after the details of the proceedings had been made known to him.

Citizen of High Standing

John W. Hogan, who had been city marshal of Janesville for many years, died on Oct. 25, 1904. Until December 27 the office was vacant, John Brown being acting-marshal. In the meantime there had been several attempts made to elect his successor but all had failed. John J. Comstock, then a member of the city council, was one of the candidates. No man had a higher reputation as an upright, straightforward citizen. He held the respect and esteem, even of those who opposed his candidacy. His excellent record as sheriff of Rock county, to which office he was elected on Nov. 5, 1878, furnished a strong argument for his friends. Mr. Comstock did not participate in the voting and this served to increase rather than lessen the difficulty of arriving at a choice. In the various ballots W. H. Appleby and John Brown were his strongest competitors. Finally, on December 27, at the close of the seventy-second balloting, the tellers announced that Comstock had received six votes and Appleby three. Mayor Hutchinson declared the former elected. For a time harmony prevailed but it was not for long. At intervals during the past eight months there has been frequent friction between the council and the police department, though on the surface the differences often appeared to be trivial and inconsequential. Friends of Mr. Comstock will be disposed to assert that the council has dealt harshly with him. Individual aldermen will reiterate that they have given him frequent notice of their disapproval of the manner and method in which certain phases of the department's work were conducted.

Career of W. H. Appleby

William H. Appleby, who will become city marshal as soon as he shall have filed his bonds and the same shall have been approved by the city council, has for many years been identified with the work of enforcing criminal law in this county. For a long period he served on the Beloit police force and subsequently he was made superintendent and acted in that capacity for six years. In 1894 he was elected sheriff of Rock county and discharged his duties so effectively and courageously as to merit his reelection to a second term in 1898. Mr. Appleby is still a young man, being but forty-four years of age. He was born in the town of Avon on October 15, 1861.

Mr. Appleby filed his bonds this morning. He will assume the duties of the office in the course of a few days.

"HOUSEHOLD"

Tact the Greatest of All Virtues, Says the Writer.

This little word of four letters, "tact," is the very best gift a person can be born with. And the best of it is, it can be cultivated. I would advise every young woman born with it out to try the art of cultivating this much-desired virtue. I saw a young woman transform herself in one year until no one would have hardly recognized her. Every act of the virtue is an unselfish one, and do not confine policy with tact. They are wide and far apart. Policy seeks its own good and looks out for number one, while tact seeks to make others happy. They never look for the flaws in one; they see the best in you and bring it out. It is surprising how everyone will seek to get near such a person at an entertainment or reception. It is never offered by a personal thrust. It is natural for us to love to hear pleasant things said to us. You can cultivate a pleasant winning expression, a low sweet voice, and massage away a frown if you have one. Never say a harsh thing. Put the word tact in big letters over your mirror and practice it every day and you will soon be loved and sought after. I also think it is one's duty to try to improve one's personal appearance. We that are getting on in life need to remove the wrinkles, to plump up our faces. It can be done by washing the face every night before retiring with hot boiled rain water. Boil it first and let it cool some, then wash the face in it, and dry good and dust with a good talcum powder, as it refines the texture of the skin, and whitens the skin and keeps it soft. If you will only take the time to improve the person and disposition, all will be well. "KENTUCKIAN."

QUIET SUBJECT OF SIDEWALKS

ALSO CONSIDERED BY THE CITY COUNCIL LAST EVENING.

2 ALDERMEN NOT PRESENT

Frank Jackson Was Out of the City, and Social Duties Kept Edward Connell Away.

Aldermen Jackson and Connell were not present at last evening's session of the city council. The former is still at Mackinac Island and the latter is reported to have been kept away by social obligations. Reports from the finance committee, the city treasurer, and the board of education were received and acted upon in connection with the latter the mayor was directed by an order to borrow to be used as needed the sum of $5,000 to be placed to the credit of the school fund. The highway committee asked for and was granted further time to consider and report on the application of the C. & N. W. Ry. Co. for permission to lay a track across Railroad street between Hyatt and Walker streets, and likewise the project of property-holders against the project, which had been filed. Two communications were received, one from certain freeholders and the other from a group of residents on the thoroughfare, protesting against the grant to the same railroad of the right to lay a track on Center avenue on the east side of the freighthouse. These were also referred to the same committee and no report relative to them was made.

Regarding Police Horse.

Regarding the police department horse which the street commissioner was given permission to use at the last session, City Marshal J. J. Comstock submitted a communication in which he stated that in order to furnish good and efficient police service it was necessary for the officers to have a horse which would be ready for them at all times. As it had all the work that one animal should be expected to do, he asked that the exclusive use of the same should remain with the department. Chairman Fish of the police committee said that it seemed to him the police could get along without the said horse and allow the street commissioner to use it part of the time, and the mayor decided that if there were no objections the matter would be left just as it stood.

Parks and Fountains.

Ald. Brockhaus reported that the bandstand in Riverview Park was in bad condition and an order that it be repaired with cement blocks and a floor, under the direction of the park committee, carried. Another directing the city clerk to order from the A. Love Mfg. Co. at the rate of 3 1/2 cents a pound, castings for the bowls of three drinking fountains, was passed. Side-walk grades for the north side of Fourth ave. from Caroline to Cornelia sts. and for Wisconsin st. from Court st. to Third were filed by the city engineer and accepted.

New Constable Elected.

H. N. Weaver was appointed special police officer without pay from Sept. 14 to Dec. 13, and the appointment was confirmed. The resignation of George Appleby as constable in the third ward was accepted and the council proceeded to ballot for his successor, the vote resulting: Alva Maxfield, 7; R. C. Inman, 1.

Ordinances Passed.

Alderman Merritt called up the two ordinances, one relating to hawkers, peddlers, and transient merchants; and the other to the licensing of theatrical shows, exhibits, and other amusements, and both were advanced to their third reading and placed on passage without opposition. The text of these important measures was given in the account of last week's council meeting.

Some Streets and Walks

H. H. St. John and George Kastner in a communication stated that on April 14 they had received a notice to build new sidewalks in front of their premises on Center avenue. Subsequently they had repaired the existing walks and they wanted the council to appoint a committee to examine if they found them in good condition to rescind the order. Nothing was done about the matter. Ald. Brockhaus introduced an order granting the owner of lot 35, block 30, original plat, in front of whose premises on Bluff street a standard walk had previously been ordered, permission to build one himself any time before May 1, 1906, and the same carried, Aldermen Dunn, Hager, and Sheridan voting in the negative. Time was granted the highway committee and the aldermen of the fourth ward for the consideration of the petition of owners of real estate on Galena street, asking that said thoroughfare from Academy to Park be narrowed to 34 feet and that the sidewalk line be six feet from the curb.

Miscellaneous Business.

Reports of the assistant street commissioner on new sidewalks needed and already built were received and acted on. The highway committee was directed by an order to investigate the proposed walk on Center avenue leading to the Blind Institute, have the old walk lowered two feet, and make arrangements with a builder for the construction of the balance. The city engineer was called upon to furnish curb lines for Cherry and Holmes streets and furnish a grade for Palm street from Pleasant to School street. The street commissioner was directed to repair School street, Pleasant street from Washington to Terrace, the west end of First street; build a brick crosswalk across School street on the west side of Academy; clean the gutters on West-ern avenue from Glen to Palm, and on Jefferson street. The Janesville Water Co. was ordered to extend its mains on North Hickory street from a point 400 feet north of Walker street to St. Mary's avenue. The city clerk was directed to order a carload of brick.

MR. AND MRS. E. M. AUSTIN
VISITED KRAUSE'S AT THORP

Account of their Trip Will Be Interesting to Many Friends of Johnstown Family.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Austin of Johnstown recently returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Krause who now live at Thorp, Wis. The description of their trip will be interesting to many who were friends of the Krause family at the time they lived in Johnstown. Leaving Janesville at 6:45 on the North-Western they reached Fond du Lac by ten o'clock. After a four hour wait they took the Wisconsin Central for Thorp and reported a fine country around Oshkosh, Neenah and Stevens Point, but their greatest surprise came when they reached Thorp. This they found to be a fine flourishing city with electric lights, water works and a splendid school system. Mr. Krause met them and took them to his home five miles from Thorp. The roads were in good condition and they arrived at the Krause farm, a place of 700 acres with many buildings, fine stock on it furnished with many of the latest improvements. Mr. Krause certainly has a home to be proud of. While there Mr. and Mrs. Austin and Mr. and Mrs. Krause attended the state fair at Chippewa Falls and also visited at Stanley. After several days of enjoyment they took their leave of Mr. and Mrs. Krause and family and started for home, filled with admiration of the country around Thorp.

Should Steel Ranges be Made of Steel? No.

Sheet steel will rust just 300 per cent quicker than sheet iron and it doesn't take a rust spot very long to work its way through, then in steel ranges there is trouble. Stove manufacturers know that almost every one believes that steel will last longer than iron and if sheet steel costs less than iron why should they make any change. There is only one range made of steel iron and the best of charcoal iron at that—the old standard, the MAJESTIC.

It may not be the cheapest, But it certainly is the least expensive to operate.

THE NEW CITY MARSHAL

The action of the common council in dismissing from the service City Marshal John Comstock, at their meeting last night, comes as a surprise to the people of Janesville.

It is true that Mr. Comstock was not the popular candidate when elected, and the council was severely criticised at that time, but the people accepted the situation and were disposed to give the new chief the moral support to which he was entitled.

While handicapped with a force which needs reorganizing, he worked to disadvantage, but little complaint has been offered and just why the council dismissed him is a question of conjecture.

In electing W. H. Appleby to fill the vacancy, however, no mistake was made. He was not only the logical candidate last winter, but he is recognized by the people as the best man in the county for the responsible position.

Twice elected sheriff, and for many years the efficient marshal of Beloit, he possesses the experience with which few men are favored. He combines with courage the rare tact and ability which contributes so largely to efficiency, and his reputation as an officer extends beyond the confines of his county and state.

It is said of the best instructors that they are born teachers, and this may truthfully be said of Mr. Appleby as a police officer. He takes to the work naturally and performs it well. The Gazette congratulates him on his appointment, and expresses popular sentiment in saying that the people will give him hearty support in every effort to maintain law and order.

A NEW ELDORADO.

For the past five years a steady tide of immigration from the western states, has been flowing into western Canada, encouraged by an organization known as the Canadian Liberals, who secured for every settler 160 acres of good farming land, and the right to vote as a full-fledged citizen at the end of three years. It is estimated that the American voting population of western Canada at the close of the present year, will reach 240,000 composed largely of farmers and ranchmen who have gone into the country during the past six years.

J. Oliver Curwood, in World's Work says of this new contingency:

No city in the Dominion is more prosperous than Edmonton, which a few years ago was only a bit of prairie land. Every town is hustling with American spirit. The west has twice the land and twice the possibilities of the old Canada east of Manitoba. Within a few years the tail is bound to wag the dog, and Americans are hurrying the country on to that day.

Astounding Results.

In Alberta the results of the American invasion are astonishing. Between Calgary and Edmonton, a distance of 200 miles, one may travel along the line of the railroad from house to house, and five out of every six people encountered are Americans. Thirty thousand people have settled the country between these two towns. Both Calgary and Edmonton are hustling American cities, and so are a score of smaller towns, ranging northward from the Montana border. Alberta is the "Wild West" of the Dominion. Across the border from Montana and Idaho have flocked hundreds of cattlemen. It is common to see wagon trains of them coming down from the foothills of the Rockies into the sunny plains of Alberta. Half a million head of cattle have been brought over in this way, and 10,000 cattlemen and cowboys now range like buffalo. But these Americans are far sighted, like their brethren along the railroads and in the towns. They foresee that in the near future the vast prairies will be homesteaded, and they have all taken claims and are working toward citizenship. Many of them already vote.

An immigrant from Iowa, "Yook at that house," said a Manitoba farmer who took up a homestead four years ago. It was a comfortable, modern dwelling to which he called attention, but near it was another building, a rough shanty made of logs and boards, with a grass-thatched roof.

"Look at that house," said a Manitoba farmer who took up a homestead four years ago. It was a comfortable, modern dwelling to which he called attention, but near it was another building, a rough shanty made of logs and boards, with a grass-thatched roof.

This is the spirit that one constantly meets. Last year 110,000,000 bushels of grain were harvested in western Canada—an average of 140 bushels for every man, woman and child. It is not unreasonable that Americans should love this country. I have met men today who would fight for it. Four out of five of the Americans, while not overjoyed at being the subjects of a king, would vote against annexation to the United States. They are content to remain British subjects until the time comes for the birth of another great commonwealth.

THE GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE.

The government printing office has been in existence since 1790. Some interesting statistics, prepared by William S. Rossiter, chief clerk of the Census Bureau, are published in the Atlantic Monthly.

This department of government work is just now being investigated, and Mr. Rossiter's article is timely. The plant represents an investment of $10,000,000. It includes a seven-story building 408 feet long and 175 feet wide and with the old building, still in use, has 16 acres of floor space. The plant is the largest in the world, and furnishes employment to 4500 people with a monthly payroll of $200,000.

The cost of operating this department from 1790 to 1799 was $155,000, while the cost for the past four years is over $29,000,000.

The Wall Street Journal in commenting says:

Because of high wages and other conditions, some of which are within and some beyond the control of the public printer, the cost of public printing and binding has long been decidedly higher than the charge for similar commercial work. Indeed, if the plant of the government office—doing a business of $7,000,000 a year—should be suddenly transformed into a private commercial establishment, the owners would discover that the charges for product, although they do not include the usual and important items of rent, interest, and profit, are nevertheless from one and one-half to ten times as high as the prices charged for similar work by printers who include the omitted items. The cost of composition and electrotyping does not much exceed the charge to customers made by the larger and higher priced commercial printing offices in New York, Boston, and Chicago; but the cost of presswork, ruling, and the folding and binding of books and pamphlets, is much higher in the government office than the commercial charges for similar items which include cost and profit combined.

It is practically impossible to secure from government employees the work—clerical or manual—that is expected and exacted from employees of private concerns. Many factors contribute to this result; it is quite apart from administration and politics, and probably never will be eradicated. The climate of Washington and the lack of commercial excitement—of the rush and bustle which keep up the workers in the great industrial centers—contributes also to lessened product and thus to proportionately increased expense. This statement applies to every government office, but obviously for most of them there is no exact standard of comparison with commercial cost of production for similar work, such as exist for the printing office.

It is doubtful if there can be found in the United States a manufacturing plant employing one-tenth of the number of persons employed in the government printing office, in which the two highest officials are paid as little as the government pays the public printer and his chief clerk. The salary of the public printer (unchanged for twenty years) is $4,500, or $34.54 per week. That of the chief clerk is $2,750, or $22.28 per week. They are, therefore, probably the worst underpaid manufacturers in the country. A commercial enterprise of magnitude which thus neglected its president and general manager would invite failure.

The criticisms offered by the Journal are just; but are not the only elements of weakness. This public industry, which comes in direct competition with private capital, has long been working under an eight hour day, and the policy of the cheap men who have managed it, was as little work as could be accomplished in a given time.

Every employee has been protected by Civil service, and if he started in with ambition to do something for himself, he soon discovered that he was expected to be a time server, and so the department, like many others, has long been honeycombed with this class of servants.

It is an open question whether the government has the right to run a printing office. It certainly lacks the ability, and if the office is to be continued it should be placed on a good business basis and in charge of some man in authority whose services are worth more than $4,500 a year.

The Farmers of Iowa were complaining a few weeks ago, that the corn crop would be a failure. Now they have so much corn that they worry about not being able to sell it. A Janesville man who has a farm in the corn belt, says that his 100 acres will yield 125 bushels per acre or more.

Three hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of beets will be marketed in Janesville this season. The merchants ought to wear a smile that don't come off, and get out and hustle for business.

The Rev. Updike of Madison is taking a whirl at Rockefeller and tainted money. If this sort of sentiment goes on the oil king may be compelled to go abroad to dispose of his charities.

The railroads of the country are planning for liberal improvements and orders are booked for 1,500,000 tons of steel rails for delivery next year.

The export trade of the United States shows an increase of $100,000,000, during the first eight months of the year, with about the same increase in imports.

Plenty of time to nominate a governor next year. The people are entitled to a little rest. When the new Boards of Commission get down to work the state may not need a governor.

With a wheat harvest already secured of 750,000,000 bushels and a corn crop of 2,717,000,000 bushels in sight, the nation will not go hungry for the next twelve months.

The price of membership today on the New York stock exchange, is $51,000, with but few vacancies.

PRESS COMMENT.

Atchison, Kan., Globe: Some people when they own a dog that would peacefully sleep around the yard and make no trouble, tie it up to insure that it will howl.

Sheboygan Journal: Racine cabbage growers are going to organize so as to secure higher prices. Adulterating sauer kraut with excelsior to make it go farther will soon become fashionable.

Fond du Lac Reporter: Cheap advertising is generally the most expensive the business man can make. There is such a thing as getting good advertising; cheap, but cheap advertising is seldom good. Cheap advertising is a drug on the market. That's why it is cheap.

Racine Journal: The increase reported in the price of diamonds does not appeal to very many people and those that it does, well, they have the price. Still after all the people of this country do considerable diamond buying, having purchased, that is, diamonds were imported, to the value of $27,400,000 in the last fiscal year.

El Paso Herald: Tipping is getting common enough, but the Russ and Lap enjoy tipping the state of New Hampshire $10,000 apiece "in token of our appreciation" establish a new record, both in the size of the tip and the recipient. There is no record of a sovereign state ever having been tipped in just this way.

Rockford Register-Gazette: Rockford didn't have a team in the Three I league this season, but one of its citizens won the pennant with the aid of half a dozen former Rockford ball players. You can't lose the old town of Angon and Spaulding from the game entirely.

Green Bay Gazette: State Insurance Commission Host may be right in thinking that he can make more money than he is receiving from the state for his services, but he should not forget that only for the opportunity given him by his present position he might never have attained so much prominence as an insurance expert as he now enjoys, and which in the future is likely to result in increased remuneration.

Madison Journal: Governed LaFollette is in town and is, no doubt, hearing from folks. It is agreed that he made a mistake in hanging up the improvements of the city, but if he will withdraw objection to the locating of the poles—perhaps permitting the city to do it—all will be forgiven. Every man is likely to err and it is only common charity on the part of the rest of us to leave a door open for graceful withdrawal.

Boston Transcript: Among other absurdities of the moment is the proposition that the whole world should chip in and present President Roosevelt with a palace of "the purest white marble, to be known as the Temple of Peace." Mr. Roosevelt has a large family and would perhaps find such a temple convenient; but since the days when the Greeks bore gifts there has hardly been a more dangerous proposition than the approach of the American people bearing a house.

Milwaukee Free Press: While it cannot be truthfully said that the Taggart divorce trial in Ohio is a trial of the regular army, yet the proceedings undeniably show that the army needs more solid employment than it gets. "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do," the same now as in the time of Dr. Watts; and the thing to accomplish is that of making army officers understand that they are actual workmen and not more "gentlemen" placed in their respective positions for show purposes, and understanding the fact, to conduct themselves accordingly.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The announcement to the effect that W. D. Connor, chairman of the republican state central committee was able to advance his candidacy for gubernatorial honors during the progress of the state fair reveals the importance of the political exhibit, which is held at Milwaukee each year along side of the pumpkins, the squashes, the fat stock and farm machinery. The announcement is of interest for the reason that some results were expected from the conference which it was declared would be held during the week. It is possible, however, that even the first premium at the state fair will not be sufficient to be recognized when it comes to the primary election. That is something which Mr. Connor and every other candidate must go against, if the law works out in practice as it does in theory. As a matter of fact, the campaign is still young and about all the prospective candidates can do is to get their boots started, and they probably won't all start at the same time.

Our Lady Nicotine.

La Crosse Chronicle: In spite of the fact that the cigarette product of the fiscal year ending June 30 increased fully 4 per cent while the pipe and chewing tobacco product increased only 2 per cent and the cigar product only 2 1/2 per cent, the uncompromising foes of the cigaret have ever reason to be reassured by the general tobacco showing. According to Tobacco Leaf, seven and a half billion cigars were manufactured in this country in the year ending June 30th. This means about 320 cigars a year for each one of the 24,000,000 males who may be considered of smoking age, among whom there are, of course several million non-smokers. Of smoking and chewing tobacco products, there are produced 14 pounds for each one of the males of smoking age. On the other hand, the number of cigarettes manufactured was only 140 cigarettes for each of the aforesaid males, and when it is borne in mind that cigarettes are also smoked by a good many boys and women, and that it takes innumerable cigarettes to equal a pound of tobacco and several to equal a cigar, the cigaret consumption, as compared with the cigar and pipe tobacco consumption, hops into very close approach to insignificance.

Growth of Fraternal Orders. Oshkosh Northwestern: The rapid growth of fraternal orders in this country is really remarkable. During the past ten years it is estimated that secret organizations of this character have increased their membership no less than eighty per cent, while during the same time the population of the entire United States has grown about twenty-five per cent. In 1894 the total membership of fraternal orders in this country was given at 4,600,000, in round numbers, while the figures compiled for last year showed a total membership of 8,278,728. And of course besides the organizations which are known as fraternal orders there are all kinds of clubs, societies, and associations, with objects ranging from sports and pastimes to social amusements and entertainments, and mutual protection and benefits in trade and business. In fact the American people are probably the greatest nation of "joiners" in the world, and the gross amount they annually pay for the support and maintenance of all these fraternal orders and other organizations would probably be sufficient to run the national government. Of the purely fraternal orders it is a matter of interest to note how they compare with each other in membership at the present time, or rather at the time of the last annual reports of these various orders. Of course, there are many with memberships running as low as a few thousand each, but for the fifteen leading organizations of this character some busy statisticians had compiled a table which shows their relative strength as follows:

Modern Woodmen of America $9,000,000
Elks 449,000
Bills 246,000

Knights of the Maccabees 209,000
Improved Order of Red Men 202,000
Independent Order of Foresters 189,000
Woodmen of the World 182,000
Order of Eagles 165,000
Knights of Pythias 151,000
Royal Arcanum 147,000
Ladies of the Maccabees 140,000
Foresters of America 117,000
Free Masons 112,000
Ancient Order of United Workmen 95,000
Ancient Order of Hibernians 93,000

It will be noticed that a majority of these are so-called insurance orders, and this in itself is somewhat significant as showing the strong desire of the people to secure cheap insurance, it being a well known fact that the rates of insurance provided by fraternal orders are generally lower than those of old line companies. Doubtless a good share of this insurance could be secured by the companies making a regular business of this line of enterprise if they would conduct their business honestly and economically and make reductions in their rates to correspond. It has always been claimed that the rates of regular insurance companies are based on strictly scientific principles and are as low as is consistent with safety and good business management, but recent disclosures in connection with the investigations following the Equitable scandal have seemed to indicate there is much needless waste and extravagance, if not absolute dishonesty and graft, in the management of the big life companies. A correction of this evil through legislative regulation and control is liable to work wonders, however, and the time may come when the regular companies may become active bidders for the insurance that is now carried to such a large extent by fraternal orders.

John Mitchell, a farmer, 50 years of age, living near Cedarburg, fell from a stack of grain and was killed.

It is said that last year no less than 7,000 visitors were recorded as having been at Abbotford, Sir Walter Scott's their time had little enough to say in its praise. Dr. John Brown called it

TO ELECT BISHOP COADJUTOR NEXT

ASSISTANT TO BISHOP NICHOLSON
SON OF MILWAUKEE DIOCESE.

MANY CANDIDATES NAMED

Possibility That Bishop Roe of Alaska
May Be Selected—Webb, Larrabee and Robinson Talked Of.

Important matters relative to the history and welfare of the Milwaukee Diocese of the Episcopal church are to be enacted in Milwaukee at the session of the council which opened this morning. At this conference the two Janesville churches, Trinity and Christ churches, have chosen the following delegates to express their wishes in the matters of importance that are to come up: From Trinity church—J. C. Fox, Harry Ransom, J. B. Stevens and G. H. Richards, with R. C. Harlow and Harry Garbutt as alternates; from Christ church—J. L. Bostwick, George S. Parker, Will Skelly and David Alwood. Each church has one vote on the question of elections and matters of diocesan questions.

Important Matter
The most important question to be settled at the present session is the election of a Bishop Coadjutor for the diocese. Bishop Nicholson is far from well and has requested that an assistant bishop be chosen. Three known candidates are in the field for this honor, Dr. W. V. Webb, President of the Nashville House; Rev. J. H. Larrabee of Chicago and Rev. H. D. Robinson of Racine college. It is also stated by a discrete few that there is a possibility of Bishop Roe, at present Bishop of Alaska, being selected. Bishop Roe is a man of national reputation and has suffered untold inconveniences in the frigid Alaskan climate and it is said would be pleased to come back to the states even though he came as an assistant bishop.

The Other Candidates
Dr. Webb of Nashville is the head of the church school at that place. He has long been prominent in diocesan work and is well and favorably known to both priests and laity. Rev. J. H. Larrabee of Chicago is known as a very high churchman and there is some doubt that even should he be elected at the session he would not be confirmed by the college of bishops. He is a strong man and well thought of in Chicago. Rev. H. D. Robinson is the third known candidate and while a much younger man than either Father Larrabee or Dr. Webb, has long been prominent in the church work.

Selection Tomorrow
The election of the Bishop Coadjutor will take place tomorrow morning at ten o'clock. It is more than probable that the informal ballot will not serve to determine the place names in nomination as friends of each of the three principal candidates believe they have a strong following. The informal ballot will test the strength of this following and even those most intimately acquainted with church conditions say that it is impossible to foresee the result, although it is believed that each of the three clergymen will have support enough to make the contest which will follow an interesting one. While other names will be presented, there is no strong concerted movement in favor of any clergyman not mentioned by the bishop as acceptable to him.

NEW GAME WARDEN NAMED BY GOVERNOR

Jonas Swenholt of Shawano Appointed to Succeed Henry Overbeck, Resigned.

Gov. La Follette yesterday appointed Jonas Swenholt of Shawano county as state fish and game warden to succeed Henry Overbeck of Sturgeon Bay for the term ending June 7, 1907. Mr. Swenholt was a member of the assembly in 1901 and again at the last session of the legislature, representing Shawano county. He took great interest in fish and game legislation and was chairman of the assembly fish and game committee at the last session. Mr. Overbeck, whose term expired last June, has continued in office pending the appointment of his successor. He retires voluntarily to take an important position with an insurance agency in Milwaukee and will remove to that city with his family.

IF IT WAS A JOKE 'T WAS A POOR JOKE

Charles Kneff Rolled for $20 While Taking Nap in Unique Club Rooms Yesterday.

Charles Kneff had an unpleasant experience in the Unique Club rooms on North Main street yesterday afternoon. It was the work of some practical joker the same was possessed of queer ideas of humor. Mr. Kneff went to the rooms about 2:30. No one was there and he locked the doors to take a bath and subsequently lay down and slept until about five. When he arose he found the door ajar and almost simultaneously discovered that the sum of $20 had been taken from the pockets of his clothes.

Blind Do Not Smoke.

One peculiar trait of persons who are blind is that there are scarcely any smokers among them. Soldiers and sailors who lose their sight while in action sometimes continue to smoke for a short time, after that great calamity overtakes them, but as a rule they soon give up the habit altogether.

GRAINS OF TRUTH.

GYM CLASSES ARE BEING ORGANIZED

Usual Winter Athletic Work Has Been Commenced at the Y. M. C. A. Building.

Work of organizing the regular winter gymnasium classes is at present occupying the attention of J. A. Ward, physical director of the Janesville Young Men's Christian Association. The Juniors assembled in the gym last Saturday for the first time since last spring, but the forming of the class was deferred until yesterday afternoon when eighteen boys were lined up and a bit of exercise taken. The first meeting of the Senior classes since disbanding was held last evening. Ten were present. When this number has grown to the usual size the body will be divided into three grades and the regular routine class work and schedule of indoor baseball and basketball games commenced. Nothing as yet has been done towards getting the business men together. The intermediates will gather this evening and the policy of their organization will depend on the number enrolled.

JANESVILLE PLOWS CHALLENGE WORLD

Again Capture Highest Honors in Big Wheatland Contest Near Aurora.

Gang and sulky plows manufactured by the Janesville Machine Co. again captured most of the high honors at the annual Wheatland ploughing contest held near Aurora, Ill., on Saturday. Leading manufacturers of those implements were represented but were unable to prevent the Bowser City concern from carrying off eight of the best prizes. Cyrus Stark, who has landed the prizes with the Janesville gang-plow for many successive seasons, was entered again and won the silver cup, the diploma, and the sweepstakes for the straightest furrow, the best lay of the dirt, and other points which count in deciding the award. There were several thousand spectators at this annual mechanical department, and Hugh Craig of the shipping department were on the sidelines.

Benjamin of Beloit has commenced an action for divorce against Henry B. Benjamin, her husband.

Off for the Mines: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howe and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Kemmner started with their touring cars for Rockford yesterday afternoon. They were to be joined there by some more automobiles and a party of eight people, including Mr. and Mrs. Nelson J. Russell. The trip was to be made from thence to Galena, Ill., where is located a mine in which the gentlemen of the party are heavily interested. They will return Thursday.

Nearly Ditched Cars: In the making of a "flying switch" on the St. Paul railway company's tracks over the roadway on North River street yesterday afternoon, a few cars were hurled against the upturned rails, which serve as a bumping post at the terminal of one of the side-tracks, and two heavy timbers forced from their moorings into the water. The cars as if by chance failed to proceed and remained on the trestle.

Shoe Case on Trial: Before a jury in municipal court this afternoon is being tried the action brought by R. P. Smith Sons & Co. against P. Rudolph of Monterey to recover payment for a consignment of shoes which he alleged were made of scrap leather and refuses to pay for. W. G. Wheeler appears for the plaintiff and T. S. Nolan for the defendant.

Auto Struck Train: On the Roscoe road near Beloit yesterday afternoon the older son of Mr. Morgan, the wealthy Chicago man, who owns a farm near the Line City, ran into a horse and buggy containing two Norwegian gentlemen, while running at a high speed. There was a splinter or two left of the buggy and the horse may life. The two Norwegians escaped with some bad bruises. The junior Morgan paid for the buggy and the full value of the horse.

Crazy Man Arrested: Late last night Officer Brown arrested a queer acting stranger near the Five Points. The man could not give his own name and could only say that he came from New York. Nothing was done with him case today.

Brought Drunk Here: Chief Scheibel of Beloit brought a drunkard by the name of Albert Strong here this afternoon to serve five days in the county jail. Chief Scheibel says that there was no bad aftermath of the Robinson circus.

NORCROSS IS MADE PARTY TO A SUIT

Attorney General Gives Permission To Allow a Suit To Be Brought Against His Dam.

As a part of the political maneuvering throughout the state, Attorney General Sturdevant has granted permission of the farmers adjacent to the Indian Ford dam to begin suit against the owner, Assemblyman Pliny Norcross, of this city to compel him to lower it. This is the same dam that sometime ago miscreants attempted to blow up but were unsuccessful. The dam has been in operation since the early fifties. Several years ago the farmers in the vicinity secured an injunction compelling him to keep the water stationary, which has since been done. It is known that previous to the present trouble regarding the dam special officers of the attorney general's office visited the dam and consulted with property-owners. Mr. Norcross was a strong anti-administration man last winter, which may explain the action of the attorney general.

Great Depths of Ocean.

A French writer in a scientific magazine tells of the great ocean depths of 23,000 to 30,000 feet, the temperature tending toward zero, the perpetual darkness ranging below depths of about 1,250 feet. At that level plants, deprived of light, can not exist. The animal life must be carnivorous. The organs of sight, not being used, have become atrophied and disappeared. Yet there is light even in that sightless world. A German exploring ship found a fish with enormous eyes at a depth of 6,400 feet.

She Uses the Spools.

A young woman stenographer, whose business experience has not robbed her of her domestic inclinations, makes a good use of the spools on which her typewriter ribbons are wound. She washes them well to remove any suspicion of ink, and uses them to wind baby ribbons, pieces of lace and other odds and ends on. The spools are very well made, and fill their extra role very well, indeed.

Use Sweet Diplomacy.

The women who have their own sweet way in all things are generally of the seemingly yielding class. The real strength of their nature is masked by an unassuming good nature that disarms others. They usually disclaim all inclination to do aught but please others and find their world ready to do their bidding. Clever women they are, and would there were more of them.

Employ a Lady.

If every firm of architects would employ a lady who has made not only the arranging and decorating of a house her special study, but those more important structural and sanitary details as well, I venture to think, says a writer in the Sphere, it would not only mean increased business to the firm, but immense improvements and comfort in both houses and flats.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

Too Fond of Notoriety

There were two little ostriches living on the border of a desert who had become possessed of a great fondness for being among the notables. friends, "My friend, Mr. Biggest-in-the-Bunch, and I ate gravel together yesterday," or "When I dined with Mrs. Head-in-the-Sand at Castle Cranky-Crow." Every new ostrich on the desert was soon aware that they were sizing him up. Their good parents had warned them of their folly, saying no good would come of it, but they were set in their pride and refused instruction.

One day while walking out for the air they saw coming toward them, a new figure in the desert. It was an ostrich of enormous size. He had peculiar feet and legs and carried his head very stiffly.

"It must be General Nincompoop," said the ostrich.

"Or Major Stick-in-the-mud," said the other.

"At any rate," said both together, "we can't afford to miss his acquaintance." The figure stood nodding its head, and they both advanced toward him.

But when they came close by they grew suspicious, for out from the feathers there came a great black face and two large black hands.

Terrified, they started to run, but it was too late, for behind a tree was an ostrich hunter with a lasso, who soon had them both in his power.

CHAPTER XIII.

IN THE DESERT.

IN the early morning of the next day after the rout at Sen's, Kenkenes wandered restlessly about the inner court of his father's house. He had slept but little the preceding night, and now, dazed and irritable, the freshness of the morning did not invigorate him, and the haunting perplexities were with him still.

There was no need of haste to the Arabian hills, and yet he could not wait patiently for an appropriate hour to visit Massarah. He paced higher and thither, flung himself on the benches in the shade, only to rise and resume his uneasy walk. Anubis, the pet ape, was omnipresent and particularly ungovernable. If his young master were in motion he vibrated and oscillated like a shuttle. If Kenkenes sat, he paced the tessellated pavement slowly and with a footfall lighter than a bird's. The sculptor eyed him understandingly and finally arose.

"Come, Anubis! Tit, tit, tit!" he called, backing toward the workroom. Anubis bounded after him, but as Kenkenes paused just over the threshold the ape also halted. His master retreated to the rear of the room, still calling, but to the ape there was something portentously familiar in this proceeding. It hinted of imprisonment. Turning as though pursued, he disappeared up an acacia tree, from which he could not be dislodged. With a vexed exclamation, Kenkenes passed out of the court into the house, slamming the swinging door so sharply that it sprang open again after him. As the old portress put back the outer doors leading into the street that her young master might go forth, a shadowy quick as thought slipped out after him. The old portress clapped her hands with a shrill command, but the ape was gone.

Once more in his workday dress, his wallet of tools and provisions across his shoulder, the young sculptor passed toward the Nile, moody and unhappy, but determined. At the river side he hired the shallow bari that had given him faithful service so long, and receiving the oars from Seneb, the boatman, prepared to push away. At that moment Anubis, tremulous, but unrepentant, bounded in beside him.

Kenkenes made a landing below the stone wharf, for there a two oared bari was already drawn up, and the tangle of herbage was a safe hiding place for his own boat. He looked toward the quarry and hesitated. He had no heart yet to face her who had laid his cruellest sorrow on him. He would continue his work on Ather until he had gathered assurance from that unforbidding face.

His light foot made no sound, and he entered the niche silently. Kneeling on the clipped stone at the base of the statue, her face against the drapings, her arms clasping its knees, was Rachel. In one hand was the collar of rings. She had not heard the sculptor's approach.

For an instant his surprise transfixed him. Had she repented? A great wave of compassion and tenderness swept over him, and he drew her face away between his palms. With a terrified start, the girl turned a swift glance upward. When she recognized Kenkenes her fearful face colored vividly. Her posture was such that she could not rise, and with infinite gentleness he lifted her to her feet.

"What is it, Rachel? Art thou in trouble?"

Joy and maidenly confusion took away her voice.

"Alas," he went on sadly, "am I so fallen from thy favor, shut out and denied thy confidence?"

"Nay, nay," she protested. "Think not so harshly of me. I am—I came"—she faltered and paused. He did not help or spare her. He had come to learn why she had done this thing, why she had said that and why she had repulsed him without explanation, when there was unmistakable preference for him in her unstudied acts. He held his peace and waited for her to proceed. Meanwhile Rachel suffered cruelly. She had no thought in her mind concerning her conduct toward him. It was the shameful event of the morning, which must be told to explain her presence before Ather, that made her cover her crimson face at last. Kenkenes silenced the protests of his gallantry and, drawing her hands away, lifted her face on the tips of his fingers and waited.

While they stood thus Deborah, exhausted and praying, staggered into the enclosure.

"Rachel!" she panted. "The serving men—thou art pursued! The fat countess, purple of countenance and breathing hard, appeared in the opening. Rachel shrank against Kenkenes, and Deborah dropped on her knees between the pair and the servant.

"Out of the way, hag!" the man panted. "Let me at you slave. Out!" He struck at Deborah with a short lance, but Kenkenes caught his arm and thrust him aside.

"Go—go back to the camp," he said to the old woman. "No harm shall befall Rachel." Raising her, he put her behind him and advanced toward the court.

"Hast thou words with me?" he said coolly. "What wilt thou?"

"The girl. Give her up!"

"Nay, but thou art peremptory. What wilt thou with her?"

"For the harm of the Pharaoh's chief adviser," the man retorted.

The blood in Kenkenes' veins seemed to become molten; flashes of fierce light blinded him, and his shrews hardened into iron. He bounded forward and his fingers buried themselves in soft and heated flesh.

The first glimmer of reason through his murderous insanity was the consciousness of a rain of blows upon his head and shoulders and a blackening face settling back to the earth before him.

He released his grip on the throat of the strangling servant and lunged off his other assailants. For a moment, stunned by the hard usage at the hands of the re-enforcing men, he staggered and seemed about to succumb. The men pursued him to finish their work, but as he eluded them, it seemed that a third person—a woman all in white with extended arms—came into their view.

Kenkenes saw the foremost, a tall Nubian in a striped tunic, stop in his tracks, and the second, smaller and lighter, but a Nubian also, following immediately behind, bumped against his fellow.

Mouths agape, eyes staring, they stood and marveled. The strange presence, they discovered at once, was neither a human being nor an apparition. It was stone—a statue.

"Sacrilege!" the first exploded. "A—a—by Amen, it is the slave herself!" In the little pause Kenkenes recovered himself, but he knew he gave Rachel to her fate if the pair overcame him. He caught her hand, and with the whispered word "Run!" fled with her toward the front of the cliff facing the Nile. It was a desperate chance for escape, but he seized it.

Immediately they were pursued and at the brink of the hill overtaken. The statue was too large for the young artist to risk its loss by adhering to the unwritten rules of combat. He released Rachel, which about and, as the foremost descended on him, ducked, seized the man about the middle and pitched him head first down into the valley. The second, the tall Nubian that wore the striped tunic, halted, dismayed, and Kenkenes, catching Rachel's hand, prepared to descend, but she checked him with a cry. "Look!"

His eyes followed her outstretched arm. At regular intervals along the Nile the distant figures of men were seen posted. Escape was cut off. He mounted to the top of the cliff and led Rachel out of view from the river. The second man retreated and raged from afar. The sculptor turned up the slightly slope toward the sun white ridge of higher hills inland. Here he would hide with Rachel till his strength returned and the ache left his head clear to plan a safe escape. The Nubian called on all the gods to annihilate them and started in pursuit. The sculptor did not pause, and, emboldened by the indifference of the man he dogged, the pursuer drew near and made menacing demonstrations. Kenkenes had no desire to be followed. He bade Rachel wait for him and approached the Nubian.

"Now," he began coolly, "thou art unwelcome, likewise insolent. Also art thou a fool, but it is an arch-idiot indeed that lacketh caution. This maid is beloved of all the Israelites. Thou art one man and alone. It would not be safe for thee to attempt to take her without help even across that little space between Massarah and the Nile. I should harass thee with others within call. Do thou save thyself and send the chief adviser after her. I would treat with him also."

The Nubian backed away, and Kenkenes followed him relentlessly until the man, overcome with trepidation, took to his heels and fled.

Even then Kenkenes did not lessen his vigilance. He caught up Anubis, who had bounded beside him during the entire time, and, running back to Rachel, turned into the limestone wastes.

Kenkenes had risked his suggestions to the single Nubian, and their effect upon him gave the young sculptor some hope that the pursuing force had been limited to these three. Though the men along the Nile were not within call, they would prevent flight into Memphis, and the camp of the Israelites, if not similarly picketed, would offer security only for the moment.

Why had not the Hebrews protected her in the beginning? He would get to a place of perfect safety first and learn all concerning this matter.

After an hour's cautious dodging from shelter to shelter through the masses of rocks they rolled up the great ridge of hills deep into the desert. Rachel would have gone on and on, but Kenkenes drew her into the shadow of a great rock and stopped to listen. The oppressive silence was unbroken. Far and near only gray wastes of hills heaved in heated solitude about them.

"Sit here in the shadow and rest," he said, turning to the weary girl beside him. "I shall keep watch."

He cleared a space for her among the debris at the base of the great fragment and pressed her down in the place he had made. Next he undid his belt and fastened Anubis to a boulder too heavy for the ape to move. The animal resented the confinement, and Kenkenes, tying him by force, found in the forepaws the collar of golden rings. With a murmur of satisfaction the young man reclaimed the necklace and thrust it into the bosom of his dress.

When he arose the day grew dark before him, and he was obliged to steady himself against the rock till the vertigo passed. His assailants had hurt him more than he had thought. But he took up his vigil and maintained it faithfully till all sense of danger had vanished.

Rachel, who had been watching his face, touched his hand at last and bade him rest. The invitation was welcome, and with a sigh he sat down beside her.

"Lie down," she said softly. "Thou hast been most cruelly misused. And all for me?"

Obediently he slipped from a sitting to a recumbent posture. She put out her arm and, supporting him, seemed about to take his head into her lap. Instead she slipped the mantle from the strap that bound it around his shoulders and, rolling it swiftly, made a pillow of it for his head.

The wallet that had hung by the same strap over his shoulder attracted her attention, and she guessed that it had been used as a carrier for provisions. She laid it open and took out the water bottle. The stopper held held during all the violent motion, and the dull surface of the porous and ever cooling pottery was cold and wet.

She put the bottle to his lips, and after he had drunk bathed his bruises most tenderly.

Succumbing to the gentle influence of her fingers, he put up his hands to take them, but they moved out of his reach in the most natural manner possible. He could not feel that she had purposely avoided his touch, but he made no further attempt when the soothing fingers returned. Finally he raised himself on his elbow and supported his head in his hand.

"Now am I new again," he said, "once more ready to help thee. Let us take counsel together and get into safety and comfort." He paused a moment till his serious words would not follow with unseemly promptness upon his light tone.

"I know thy trouble, Rachel," he began again soberly. "There is no need that thou shouldst hurt thyself by the telling, but there are details which would be helpful in aiding thee if I had them in mind. Thou knowest better than I. Wilt thou aid me?"

Her golden head drooped till her face was bowed upon her hands. After a little silence she answered him, her voice low with shame.

"This man sought to take me before. At Pa-Ramesu, but Ather learned of it in time and sent me to Massarah. This morning I met him again." She paused, and Kenkenes aided her.

"Aye, I can guess, poor affronted child."

"Ather meant to escape with me again, but the servants of the nobleman came before we could get away."

Kenkenes knew by her choice of words that she did not know the name of her persecutor, and he did not tell her what it was. He could not bear the name of Ather on her lips. She went on after a little silence.

"I came," she began, coloring deeply, "to leave thy collar with the statue. I did not expect to find thee there."

How little it takes to dispirit a lover! How could he know that any thought had led her to do that thing save an impulse actuated by indifference or real dislike? His hope was immediately reduced to the lowest ebb. The mention of the taskmaster's name brought forward the probability of a rival.

"I can take thee back to Ather," he said slowly. "These menials will not remain in the hills after sunset, and under cover of night I can slip thee, by strategy, past any sentries they may have set and get thee to Ather. I, by my sacrifice, and he by his insubordination, are both under ban of the law, but danger with him will be sweeter danger than peril with me, I doubt not."

She looked at him, and the hurt that began to show on her face gave place to puzzlement.

from shelter to shelter through the masses of rocks they rolled up the great ridge of hills deep into the desert. Rachel would have gone on and on, but Kenkenes drew her into the shadow of a great rock and stopped to listen. The oppressive silence was unbroken. Far and near only gray wastes of hills heaved in heated solitude about them.

"Sit here in the shadow and rest," he said, turning to the weary girl beside him. "I shall keep watch."

He cleared a space for her among the debris at the base of the great fragment and pressed her down in the place he had made. Next he undid his belt and fastened Anubis to a boulder too heavy for the ape to move. The animal resented the confinement, and Kenkenes, tying him by force, found in the forepaws the collar of golden rings. With a murmur of satisfaction the young man reclaimed the necklace and thrust it into the bosom of his dress.

When he arose the day grew dark before him, and he was obliged to steady himself against the rock till the vertigo passed. His assailants had hurt him more than he had thought. But he took up his vigil and maintained it faithfully till all sense of danger had vanished.

Rachel, who had been watching his face, touched his hand at last and bade him rest. The invitation was welcome, and with a sigh he sat down beside her.

"Lie down," she said softly. "Thou hast been most cruelly misused. And all for me?"

Obediently he slipped from a sitting to a recumbent posture. She put out her arm and, supporting him, seemed about to take his head into her lap. Instead she slipped the mantle from the strap that bound it around his shoulders and, rolling it swiftly, made a pillow of it for his head.

The wallet that had hung by the same strap over his shoulder attracted her attention, and she guessed that it had been used as a carrier for provisions. She laid it open and took out the water bottle. The stopper held held during all the violent motion, and the dull surface of the porous and ever cooling pottery was cold and wet.

She put the bottle to his lips, and after he had drunk bathed his bruises most tenderly.

Succumbing to the gentle influence of her fingers, he put up his hands to take them, but they moved out of his reach in the most natural manner possible. He could not feel that she had purposely avoided his touch, but he made no further attempt when the soothing fingers returned. Finally he raised himself on his elbow and supported his head in his hand.

"Now am I new again," he said, "once more ready to help thee. Let us take counsel together and get into safety and comfort." He paused a moment till his serious words would not follow with unseemly promptness upon his light tone.

FARMER SHOTS AT AUTOIST

Wealthy Miner Has Narrow Escape When Bullet Pierces His Hat.

Darlington, Wis., Sept. 19.—Frank Trego, a mine owner of Plattville, Wis., was shot at by a farmer and a bullet pierced his hat while driving his automobile through the country near Cuba City. The farmer, who is said to be a wealthy and well-known man living near here, was driving along the road when the machine came up in the rear. The horses were scared, it is alleged, and Trego did not stop. Then the horses dashed into the fence along the way and the farmer, trembling with fright and anger, drew a thirty-eight-caliber revolver and fired. Had the bullet struck two inches lower it would probably have killed Trego. The hat was torn from his head.

CRIPPLE KILLS TWO IN FIGHT

One Armed Man, Defending Home, Stabs Assaults to Death.

Anadarko, Ok., Sept. 19.—Two men were killed and a third dangerously wounded at Oakley, a small town near here. The wounded is a one-armed man named Roane Gonzales. He says that the two men, who were strangers, came to his home and asked for work. When told there was none they demanded food and shelter. They were refused, and a fight ensued, in which pocket knives and a big bowie knife was used.

RUSSIA'S FINE OUTLOOK

Stronger Now Than Ever Before, Says Witte.

A GREATER NATION PREDICTED.

Peace Envoy of the Czar Calls America and Russia the Two Great Countries of the World—Both, He Declares, Produce Men and Material Which Make For Success.

"America and Russia are almost like the far famed Siamese twins," said M. Sergius Witte, the chief Russian peace envoy, in his room in the St. Regis hotel, at New York, to a New York Herald reporter the other afternoon. "The two great countries of the world," he then added, "are Russia and the United States. They are the two great countries of the world because they both produce men and material. That is the secret of any nation's success."

Asked if he thought Russia's commercial condition had been bettered or injured by the war, M. Witte said:

"Russia is better now than she ever was. After the war she will get on her feet again, and when she gets on her feet it will be a firm and strong position that she takes."

In answer to a question as to whether the internal troubles in Russia were agitating the minds of the government, M. Witte replied:

"That is a diplomatic question which I cannot answer, but I can say Russia is a much misunderstood country in America. America is so far away, so distant by land and sea, so almost remote in all the possibilities of our national life, that it is not at all surprising that false and exaggerated reports become current here. It also happens that we of Russia have erroneous reports about the United States. We are told of your lynchings, your riots, your popular uprisings. In St. Petersburg and Moscow these appear to us as very serious matters. Doubtless we appear to your statesmen here in the same position. Still, I think it is only fair, only just and only equitable to look at the two troubles in social, economic with an eye glass which reaches five thousand miles."

"I certainly do not intend to state that the Russian civil life is perfect. I presume you do not intend to state that the civil life of America is perfect. We both have our faults. We both, I trust, are striving to overcome or obviate them."

"Will you speak about Russian affairs in the far east?"

"On that question my lips are sealed."

"Will you say anything about the evacuation of Manchuria by the Russian troops?"

"Nothing at all."

"Will you speak about the financial position of Russia?"

"I will tell you of Russia's greatness, of Russia's wonderful recuperative powers. I will tell you that now that Russia has ended her war with Japan her commerce will rise and rise until it is a supreme thing in her international relations. Do not think for a moment that Russia has been left out of the game, as you say here. We are still in it. We have the men, the money and the people. We also have the greatest undeveloped country that exists, not even excepting the United States. Our climate ranges from the tropics to the arctic."

"It is a very delightful thing to have a country so much like our own step in and act as the intermediary in this trouble we have had. I do not care to speak about the trouble or the future results. That is a matter which is entirely diplomatic and official, but I do feel very great kindness for the American people outside of all official relations. We came here as friends and we were received as guests. We are still in that delightful condition."

"Do you think that Russia is a promising place for enterprising Americans to go into to make money?" he was asked.

"To answer that would be to answer a speculative question. Russia is not a speculative nation. Russia is so much like the United States that a direct answer would be an implication of Russia's honesty or that of the Americans. Russia is not looking for anything that she cannot herself provide. Friends are always welcome, always gladly received."

It's Coming.
Over the verdure of the forest hangs a hint of purple haze; There's a lengthening of night time and a shortening of day; There's a katydid that nightly sings his rasping song to me From a secret nook that's hidden in the silver poplar tree. On the sumac and the berries show a glint of fire and flame; And the oaks will soon be blushing vivid scarlet—not for shame. Something's mellowing the sunshine while the waiting world is still; And the goldenrod is blooming 'mid the briars on the hill.

Yellow plumelets nodding, swaying with a wild, uncurbed grace, Lending shine and sheen and glory to old nature's rugged face; Turning all the weedy roadside into solid ranks of gleam. Reaching out across the meadows to the borders of the stream, Peeking from the woodcock's fringes with a shy and winning smile, Bidding dreariness vanish from the dying world awhile. Thus it comes—the autumn's herald, ardent enemy of gloom— Joy it pleads to live and labor when the goldenrod's in bloom.

GREAT FLOODS RAGING THROUGHOUT MISSOURI

Twelve Persons Have Lost Their Lives and Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Property Destroyed.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 19.—One of the worst floods in Missouri at this season of the year is now raging through the Missouri river bottoms. All streams and rivers are out of their banks and some, not more than a few yards wide, are now raging floods, from one to three miles wide.

Thousands of acres of corn land are under water and farmers will suffer a tremendous loss. Hundreds of head of live stock have been drowned.

Twelve persons have lost their lives. The loss to railroads is enormous. Miles of track are washed away, and dozens of steel bridges are swept out, as well as hundreds of smaller bridges and culverts. Railroad traffic in central Missouri is paralyzed, and there is no longer direct communication between St. Louis and Kansas City by rail.

The Missouri Pacific and Missouri, Kansas & Texas have run no trains over their tracks between St. Louis and Kansas City since Saturday morning, and the Wabash and Alton have been forced practically to abandon operations.

The only means of communication remaining between the two cities is by a roundabout way.

On the issuance by the weather bureau of a special danger bulletin, large numbers of workmen were employed on the levee moving back the merchandise. Large stores of lumber and other merchandise were swept away. Barrels of apples, bales of cotton, baskets of vegetables and thousands of feet of lumber went down the river at the rate of ten miles an hour.

Thousands of acres in the vicinity of St. Louis already are under water, and the worst is not yet come.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES.

The secretary of the interior has ordered the withdrawal from entry of 300,000 acres of land in the Roswell, N. M., land district on account of the Carlsbad irrigation project.

Ray Weeks, aged 14, who prepared the meals for his father, the mother being dead, was burned to death at Terre Haute, Ind., by the explosion of a gasoline stove while preparing a meal for his father.

The death roll from the explosion at the Climax Fuse company's works at Avon, Conn., last Friday has been increased to thirteen. Michael Canfield, aged 50, and Mrs. Ida Wild, 20 years old, have died since Saturday.

Levi P. Bevard, who was indicted for the murder of his mother-in-law Mrs. Francis L. Werts, by the grand jury, was arrested at Newark, O., while cutting corn. He declared that he could prove his innocence.

The body of a man supposed to be August Julius was found on the Lake Shore tracks at Bryan, O., horribly cut up. There are indications of foul play. The address of John Julius of 224 Grand avenue, Omaha, was found on the body.

William Hunter, arrested in Detroit on his honeymoon for alleged complicity in the Denver election frauds, was taken to Toledo, O., on the charge of defrauding a hotel. Hunter has confessed to forging checks on his father, a prominent business man.

HOW TO MAKE HASTE.
Reader, do you know how to hurry? This is a hurrying age, and you ought to know how to keep up with it. If you think it worth while, here are a few suggestions written for busy men that may help you:

1. Do nothing that you don't have to do. Cut out the non-essentials.

2. Don't hesitate. Begin at once. When you are through stop, and begin on the next thing.

3. Don't be too particular what part of the job you begin with. Other things being equal, do what is under your hand first, and the next nearest thing next.

4. Don't pause between jobs.

5. Don't go from one job to another, until the first is done. Do one thing at a time. It takes time to change your mind.

6. Do your thinking while you are acting, and think about the work in hand.

7. If you have assistants, use them. At first, do only what they can't do, and afterward help them out.

8. Do nothing twice. This makes it necessary to do it right the first time.

9. Don't lay down one tool except to take up another. If you follow these rules and a few more that you can make yourself, you will be able to reduce your working hours about one-half; you won't think you are hurrying; you won't be bored and worn out by your work, and when it is over you can go and romp with the baby with an approving conscience and a mind at rest.—Montreal Herald.

Bishop Was an Editor.
Dr. O'Reilly, archbishop of Adelaide, South Australia, possesses an unusual accomplishment. Before he became a bishop he was the editor of one of the Australian Catholic journals. His compositors went out on strike, and in the emergency he helped in the mechanical department. By the time the difficulty had been adjusted he had pretty well mastered the art of typesetting, and for the rest of his editorial career he did not write his leading articles. He just went into the composing-room and set them up.

RELEASE PONTIAC MAN FROM PANAMA PRISON

Adventure of Michigan Citizen Who Fled Claim for Copper Mine Exposed by Landslide.

New York, Sept. 19.—Fred Walker, the American citizen whose home is in Pontiac, Mich., and who was recently released from a prison in Panama, arrived here Monday on the steamship Allanca from Colon. His imprisonment was said to have been caused by American mining interests near whose territory Walker was conducting mining operations. He said that he was imprisoned about March of this year.

Mr. Walker landed under charge of a police officer of the canal zone and was met by a physician from Pontiac, Mich., who expected to accompany him home.

Walker told some of the adventures which befell him during the period when his enemies were trying either to thwart his work or to cause his disappearance. This struggle against odds began as long ago as 1901, when he first went to Colombia to look after his interests in a mine there.

As there was no steamer to take him direct to his destination Walker hired a British sloop. While sailing on this ship a Chinese-Philippine, one of the crew, stole his papers and cash box and made off with them.

Last spring, he says, he found that part of a mine, known as the Old Au-Berette, had been covered by a landslide and that there was copper ore near this landslide. He then went to the alcalde, or mayor at Canazas to file his proof of finding copper, but the alcalde refused to recognize the proofs, claiming others were ahead of his, and detained him there for seven days. Then, he says, the alcalde built a fence about part of the property, which upon his return Walker tore down and threw into the street.

"The alcalde," said Walker, "sent two men armed with Mausers to arrest me. I pretended to get ready to go, and while saddling my horse drew two revolvers and stood them off."

"Later I went to the alcalde's office and asked him what he wanted. He told me I was under arrest and at this announcement two soldiers appeared in the doorway. I pulled my two revolvers, made the soldiers give up their guns, and then, putting the alcalde aside, made my escape. Finally I was arrested in Panama and was turned over to the police."

Foes of Jamaicans.

A few years ago the people of Jamaica had two terrible foes—snakes and rats. To cope with them the alien mongoose was introduced, with the result that the snakes vanished. The rats, however, took to the trees, where they so reduced the number of eggs and birds that the cattle ticks began to breathe more freely—so freely, indeed, they fell upon the mongoose himself, which is now threatened with extinction.
